

LANDLESS MOVEMENT

UWE H. MARTIN FRAUKE HUBER

Marciano Da Silva talks about the landless movement's fight for land and human dignity and what differentiates their farmers from commercial farms. The MST is a mass social movement, formed by rural workers fighting for land reform and against injustice and social inequality in rural areas. The MST became a national movement in 1984 and led more than 2,500 land occupations. About 370,000 families settle on 7.5 million hectares of land that they won as a result of the occupations.
